THAS. C. REINHARDT'S patent glas patented Sop. 24, 1844.) for the support and cure f rupture, or burnis, suitable to all sizes and ages, or men, women, and children.

This truss has the superiority of any heretofore ouse first, on account of its durability and cleaniness, the rupture pad I cing of glass, (in any hape or form.) the adjustments of the springs to uit the action of the body, and calculated to be titled to either side. The rupture pad (glass) has double motion: first, by revolving on its own xis; second, by the lever to which it is attached, and where said lever is connected to the main pring. The supersority which this truss has over their is obvious in this, that it is most effectual in etaining the parts in their proper place, and maining due pressure; it is always clean; its shape or orm is durable, which in stuffed pads is not the age, (as they become saturated with the fluids named, being so adapted as to remain perfectly course where applied.

As a proof of its efficacy of the great number that as been vended, not one of the owners has been santisfied, but have spoken in the most commendaters of it.

CERTIFICATES.

BALTIMORE, May 15, 1846.

Mr. C. C. REINMARDT: I have examined and sed to some extent the truss of Mr. Charles C. einhardt. It is an instrument well adapted to eatment of hernia, and especially the accomplishent of the radical cure. I do not hesitate to recommend it as an ingenious and useful instrument. N. R. SMITH, M. D. Prof. o. Surgery.

Having examined the truss of Mr. Chas C. Reis JOHN R. W. DUNBAR.

I have used the several trusses manufactured by Mr. C. C. Reinhardt, and have found them well adapted to effect the ends for which trusses have been applied.

I regard the truss of Mr. Chas. C. Reinhardt as superior to any other now known, and should be glad to see it generally introduced into practice.

Baltimore, May 14, 1846.

The hernial truse, invented by Mr. C. C. Reinhardt, has advantages over most others now in use, in regard to durability of material, variety of form of pad, and its admitting of being easily cleaned. Its introduction into use, if judiciously selected and applied, I doubt not would give general satisfaction. H. WILLIS BAXLEY, M. D.,

A SHABBY Coat will not do for me.—

A It is not every man that can afford to wear a shabby coat, and wordly wisdom dictates to her disciples the propriety of dressing somewhat beyond their means, but of living within them; for every one sees how we dress, but none see how we live except we choose to let them. But the truly great are, by universal suffrage, exempted from these trammels, and they may live or dress as they please. So please to call on Ws.
